A little about the law - A lot about everything else!

A NOTE FROM MARK & ALEXIS

The law and sports. That is what our family is all about!

As many of you know, Mark is a Michigan State fan. All four of our boys are obsessed with football and basketball.

Cade recently began flag football and Mark is the coach. The people on the sidelines were commenting that Mark was so focused. Little did they know, he was drawing up plays for the 5 year old flag football game! Cade was so excited for his game that he was chanting and singing all week about how he was going to play football. On the sideline during the game, Cade would start the chants of "Let's go Cardinalds" - their team name. I thought it was funny that the smallest player was leading the chants and everyone would follow! Of course, on the way to the game, Cade let us know that he was capturing us in his Spider-Man web.

At the end of Cade's game, Mark disappeared. At first, I couldn't find him and then Mark's Dad pointed out to me where he was and commented that Mark was probably being interviewed for questioning on his plays and game techniques. Mark really takes coaching seriously! Editor's Note from Mark: We lost our first game, I am sorry to report. While most of the players on the team (ages 5-8) were just having fun, Cade could not stop talking about the loss all day. As soon as he walked in the door, he went right up to his big brother Pierce and said, "We lost because Dad didn't have good plans." Nice to see the kid already has it figured out that his dad was out-coached in pee-wee flag football!

Zev loved flag football until he was about nine and had to put pads on. At that time, we all knew for a kid who doesn't like any contact, football probably wouldn't be his sport! Zev always got the sport though unlike Cade who ran the wrong way in his game and almost scored a touchdown for the other team! Editor's Note from Mark: We all thought Zev would not like contact, but Zev did not realize it. Before they started the actual hitting, his coach told me that Zev was going to play every position on the team. Then the pads came on, and Zev spent most of the season on the bench!

Zev transferred to University of Miami and has been calling with daily updates. That was part of the bribery in letting him transfer. Editor's Note from Mark: Zev is loving his new school. Last semester you had to prod him to get him to say anything, while this semester he has actually sent us texts that say "call me." This is probably related to the fact that he is excited to tell us what is going on. Well, that and the fact that Alexis has bribed and threatened him to ensure communication while he is away. Alexis is definitely missing her oldest child.

Tate was "hired" by my parents to do some work for them so he has been using his money to order pizzas. He spent much of his break on the couch watching football and eating pizza. I think the Dominoes people know him by his first name. One of the kids went to take a slice of his pizza and he said there was no way he was sharing. What a nice brother he is! Editor's Note from Mark: I asked Tate how much time he spent helping his grandparents clean things around their house. He told me it was four hours of hard work. A couple of days later my father-inlaw told me Tate spent about an hour, maybe 90 minutes working for them. So, of course, I had to ask Tate. After telling him that his "four hours of hard work" story did not exactly mesh with the other side, he admitted it was probably closer to one hour but that he worked so hard it was like giving them four hours of work!

February 2016

Our client was bitten by a pit bull when he went to a home to purchase an elliptical machine. Our client was standing on the outside of the home owner's gate and yelled to say that he had arrived. The defendant argued that our client was trespassing because his hands were on the gate. Our client's hand developed a serious infection and injury. Right before the trial was supposed to take place, the opposing counsel decided to offer a fair settlement. Though it took fighting to almost a trial taking place, it was well worth it!

A NOTE FROM MARK & ALEXIS (cont'd)

Pierce is also playing flag football. Pierce spends most of his time at home throwing the football to Cade or Tate. They have "games" in our room. It's funny that they are always in our room when they can be anywhere else but for some reason, they like our room. Pierce said to me the other day that he was going to be a pro-football player. Lucky for him he hasn't sensed reality that he's a full head shorter than most of the kids on his team. Editor's Note from Mark: The kid has plenty of time to grow or suddenly defy genetics. I say the kid should keep dreaming and planning on playing in the NFL after helping MSU win a few National Championships. The best part of these ongoing football games is how often they turn into tackle football. Pierce seems to understand his place but still tries to get Tate down. Cade thinks he can tackle his 10 year old and 15 year old brothers. The downside, of course, is how loud they are when they play. My attempts to watch TV are usually turned into playing quarterback.

Karina likes to join in on the football games but the other day she got clobbered so I'm not sure if she'll be playing anymore! She decided to do soccer this season and she's the only girl. She says she wants to be on a girls' team and that the boys are mean. Karina is super imaginative. She also told Pierce the other day that she had five friends over and they came and went before he saw them. I think she'll be a creative director for some TV production company or a lawyer... She's pretty good at arguing too! Editor's Note from Mark: Yesterday I heard her on the phone arranging for a friend to come over. I then realized nobody was actually on the phone with her. She has a great imagination and can stay entertained for hours. Sometimes she grabs Cade and they go into some imagination/play deal where they are having fun by themselves for hours at a time.

Ariella's speech and debate just started at her middle school. She also does the announcements in the morning. The other day she drove with me and the younger kids and said, "I can't believe how hard you have it in the mornings. You should switch with dad." I'm not sure what Mark does to keep the kids he drives quiet but it must be some sort of threatening action. My morning drop off always consists of all the kids wanting to talk at once! Editor's Note from Mark: This is the advantage of being the "mean dad." Ariella told me that same thing - that I have it easy - and I have assured her that I am more than happy to trade with mom. As far as Ariella, she went ice skating the other day and somehow got her finger caught in the door - not good. I received a call from Ariella's phone with a man on the other end, which was scary, until he said she just hurt her finger and should be fine. I was proud of how Ariella handled the whole thing - it looked painful but she did not complain until I told her that her nail may fall off. The look on her face was photo-worthy!

Talia has a new tutoring business! She has been tutoring her friends in math. Most of our kids are strong in math and that's part of why Zev and Kailey are studying/ planning to study engineering. Talia is a true master at negotiating. She always manages to negotiate something out of me... not so much Mark though! Any time Talia doesn't like what we are saying she says, "Stop." Except it's the long drawn out version of stop. It's quite comical watching Mark mimic her. Editor's Note from Mark: It goes like this -"Staaaaawp, DAD!" I try not to mimic her since it just gets her more angry but I cannot help myself. She tells me to stop so often I feel the need to point it out and remind her that whining is not effective. This, of course, just gets her more mad.

Kailey is winding down her senior year. She's running track and must be the most goal oriented person I know. She's being paid back for all of her hard work in high school by getting accepted into University of Texas and Purdue's engineering program. She's very excited but I think she may have been brainwashed by Mark into going to Michigan State. She keeps telling me that she see herself there. Probably since she's been hearing Mark scream and cheer for Michigan State from before she was born. Anyways we are excited for her next adventure. Editor's Note from Mark: I am very proud of Kailey for getting into such highly respected engineering schools and she is still waiting on other schools she has applied to. Most of all, I am proud of the effort she put in during high school. She sometimes even pushes herself a little harder than I would like. I will have to try to stop myself from pushing MSU!

Automobile Accidents and when you Hire an Attorney.

The most common type of personal injury cases are automobile accidents. Driving in a vehicle is always dangerous; no matter how skilled of a driver you are, because of all the other drivers out there. Multi-tasking while driving is common among most drivers like eating, texting, and changing the station, and can lead to terrible accidents. Each automobile accident case is different and must be dissected carefully by a knowledgeable personal injury lawyer in order to ensure that total justice and fairness is received. Some people question whether they should hire a lawyer. Studies have been done showing people who have lawyers receive higher settlements when they are represented. That being said, some cases require attorneys and in some cases it may be that an attorney is not needed. We can let you know our thoughts if you are in an accident and have questions, we are here to help.

Our client was badly injured in a car accident, along with 5 other people. We were able to get the full policy limits from the adverse driver for our client. We also negotiated a compromise with worker's compensation, and coordinated with the adjuster with the other parties to speed up the case process. On top of that, we were able to obtain the full amount of policy limits from the under-insured. Our client is feeling much better and excited to purchase a new home!

The Husband and Wife Law Team had another successful segment on Channel 12 MidDay and the TODAY Show this month!

Our client was driving when the defendant made a lefthand turn in front of him. He tried to avoid the accident by steering to his right but unfortunately his car slid. After a lot of hard work, we were able to double the original settlement offer, get the liens substantially reduced, and get a considerable amount of money in our client's pocket. This case had a great outcome and ended with a very happy client!

We hosted a fun Super Bowl party at the office. Thank you for all that showed up to enjoy the day with us!

We had a client involved in a terrible motorcycle accident where he suffered serious injuries to his leg. He underwent several surgeries and was in rehab for many weeks. We were able to get the medical lien reduced to pennies on the dollar. Our client received a sizable amount in his pocket! Huge victory!

This month we had 4 new Community Congratulations Billboard winners; Christine Marsh, Naomi Oakes, Samuel Xu, Khalia Lanier. If you want to be featured for a special accomplishment, give us a call!

After our client had been rejected by multiple law firms, prior to signing with us, we were able to get him a policy limits offer and thousands in his pocket! Very happy client!

We are gearing up for our 20th Anniversary Celebration! We will have food trucks, bouncy houses, clowns doing face painting and balloon animals, and more! RSVP at Breyerlaw.com/vip.
