WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Team USA features Clark for World Cup

Mitchell Northam
USA TODAY

The roster is set for the U.S. women's national basketball team ahead of its next major tournament.

On NBC's "Today Show" on Aug. 5, Team USA managing director Sue Bird unveiled the 12-player unit that will head to Berlin in less than a month to compete in the 2026 FIBA Women's World Cup.

Headlining that roster – which will be coached by Duke women's basketball head coach Kara Lawson – are veterans like four-time WNBA MVP A'ja Wilson and two-time MVP Breanna Stewart, as well as rising stars in women's basketball like Caitlin Clark, Paige Bueckers and Angel Reese.

"This is an incredibly talented group that has earned the opportunity to compete in Berlin," Bird said in a statement. "Wearing a USA jersey is a privilege, and I know these 12 players will embrace that responsibility as we go after another gold medal. I can't wait to see what this team accomplishes together."

Team USA has won nine of the last 12 FIBA World Cups, including four straight. Wilson was the MVP of the 2022 tournament held in Sydney, Australia, after averaging 17.2 points and 7.5 rebounds per game. This will be the first time Wilson plays for Team USA since Lawson took over as head coach last September.

The nod for Stewart marks her fourth World Cup appearance, making her just three players to play in that many for Team USA. Bird played in five and Diana Taurasi four.

Clark, Bueckers and Reese will play for the senior U.S. national team a second time. They featured for Lawson at the World Cup qualifying tournament in March in Puerto Rico. Clark was named MVP after averaging 11.6 points and a tournament-best 6.4 assists per game while leading the Americans to a 5-0 record.

Here's the full roster for Team USA at the 2026 FIBA World Cup in Germany:

- Caitlin Clark, Indiana Fever.
- A'ja Wilson, Las Vegas Aces.
- Angel Reese, Atlanta Dream.
- Paige Bueckers, Dallas Wings.
- Rhyne Howard, Atlanta Dream.
- Kelsey Plum, Phoenix Mercury.
- Kahleah Copper, Phoenix Mercury.
- Jackie Young, Las Vegas Aces.
- Breanna Stewart, New York Liberty.
- Napheesa Collier, Minnesota Lynx.
- Aliyah Boston, Indiana Fever.
- Chelsea Gray, Las Vegas Aces.

Team USA begins group stage play at the World Cup on Sept. 4, opening with a game against China. The Americans will then play Italy on Sept. 6 and Czechia on Sept. 7 before the knockout round begins. Team USA is 8-0 all time against China, 1-1 against Italy and 2-0 against Czechia.

The WNBA season will take a pause while the World Cup is played. The gold medal game is set for Sept. 13 and WNBA games will resume on Sept. 17.

Lawson will coach through the 2028 Olympics in Los Angeles. The last time the Summer Games were held in Los Angeles, Lawson's college coach – the late Pat Summitt of Tennessee – led the Americans to their first gold medal.

Beginning with the 1996 games, Team USA has won eight consecutive Olympic golds. Lawson played on the team that won gold in 2008 and was an assistant coach on the 2024 gold medal-winning team coached by the Minnesota Lynx's Cheryl Reeve. Lawson was also the head coach of the Team USA 3x3 squad that captured the gold medal at the 2021 Olympics in Tokyo – a team that featured Plum, who led the tournament in scoring.

Caitlin Clark, left, of the Indiana Fever and A'ja Wilson, right, of the Las Vegas Aces made the Team USA roster for the World Cup. ETHAN MILLER/GETTY IMAGES

"It's been a long process to whittle it down to 12 players, and I think that speaks to just the talent we have in our country across the board. These 12 have earned it through their play and their consistency," Lawson said in a statement. "I think that's what makes it even more special is the relationships that you have, and having worked with them in different capacities. I know what they're capable of, and I know that this is a group that's ready for the challenges that are ahead."

Assisting Lawson on the bench in Germany will be a trio of WNBA head coaches in Stephanie White of the Indiana Fever, Natalie Nakase of the Golden State Valkyries and Nate Tibbetts of the Phoenix Mercury. Additionally, Dallas Wings head coach Jose Fernandez and Duke assistant Tia Jackson will be on Lawson's staff as scouts.

The FIBA World Cup will be broadcast by TNT Sports.

PGA TOUR

Why Young uses a pause in his swing

Adam Schupak
Golfweek | USA TODAY Network

GREENSBORO, NC – To pause or not to pause – that is the question.

Cameron Young's idiosyncratic swing with its pause at the top has drawn its share of supporters and haters.

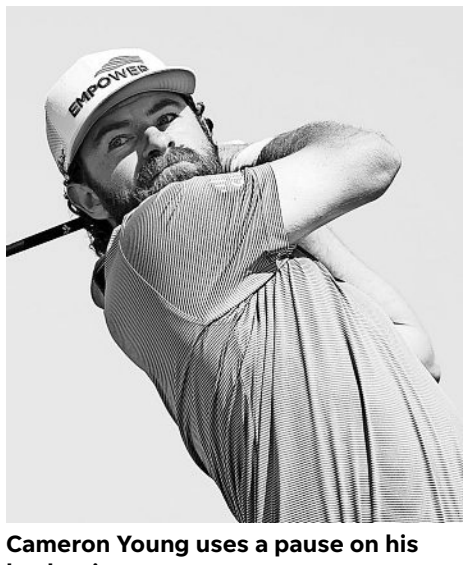

It started as a drill that he and his father and swing coach, David, would do on the driving range.

The purpose?

To eliminate any re-routing or sideways movement of the club in transition.

Through the years, it has become more pronounced and noticeably longer than it was during his college years at Wake Forest.

"It's not a pause," wrote golf instructor Jim LaBuda on Facebook. "It's control. What looks like a pause is actually perfect timing: The backswing fully completes, the lower body is already starting to shift, the upper body stays patient for a split second. That tiny separation is everything. It creates sequence. It creates space. It creates effortless speed. Most amateurs rush from the top and throw everything at the ball at once. Cameron Young does the opposite – he lets the swing transition before he fires."

Cameron Young uses a pause on his backswing.
ANDREW REDINGTON/GETTY IMAGES

Young, 29, is enjoying a breakout season, including a win at The Players Championship in March, and has vaulted to third in the world. He came into the Wyndham Championship as the pre-tournament favorite.

His fundamentals are solid but not everyone agrees that his hesitation at the top of the swing is something to copy. He makes it work, but in the history of the game only a handful of players have been able to pull off that move – among them Cary Middlecoff, the winningest player on tour in the 1950s, Nancy Lopez, who dominated the LPGA for much of the 1970s and '80s, and more recently Hideki Matsuyama, the 2021 Masters champion.

Legendary pro Tommy Armour devoted a chapter in his 1954 instruction book entitled "How to Play Your Best Golf All the Time," to making a hesitation at the top of the backswing to stop from rushing, improve transition sequencing and gain control of the club before starting the downswing.

But some teachers advocate no transition.

Golf's most repeatable swings from Calvin Peete to Lee Trevino to Ben Hogan don't have a top because the lower body is going forward first before the club gets to the top.

But there's no arguing that Young is swinging his swing and he's been able to make his distinctive pause work.

Trump expected at LIV Golf New York

Mark Giannotto
USA TODAY

LIV Golf is back in the United States with its uncertain future as a league looming large over the actual tournament being held. LIV Golf New York began with first-round action on Aug. 6 at Trump National Golf Club in Bedminster, New Jersey, and there is expected to be a special guest on hand to watch Bryson DeChambeau, Jon Rahm and the rest of LIV Golf's international roster.

President Donald Trump plans to attend the tournament, a White House official confirmed to USA TODAY. It wasn't immediately clear which dates the president will be there.

This is the second-to-last regular-season event scheduled for LIV Golf's turbulent 2026 season. After Saudi Arabia's Public Investment Fund announced in April it would no longer provide funding moving forward, LIV Golf CEO Scott O'Neil said during a news conference Aug. 5 there is now a preliminary agreement with a new lead investor and a new organizational structure that will make LIV Golf players "majority equity holders" starting in 2027.

Back to water, work for Fox after major

Adam Schupak
Golfweek | USA TODAY Network

Ryan Fox holds the Claret Jug after winning the Open Championship in July at Royal Birkdale for his first major title. BILL STREICHER/IMAGN IMAGES

At the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am in February, the first tee starter announced Ryan Fox as the winner of the net division of the Seminole Pro-Member with his pro-am partner, Jimmy Dunne III, before proceeding to list off all the various accolades of fellow pro competitor Rory McIlroy, the reigning holder of the Masters Green Jacket.

On Aug. 13 in Memphis at the opening round of the FedEx St. Jude Championship, the starter had a new title for Fox: Champion Golfer of the Year.

It's a distinction the 39-year-old New Zealand native can get used to hearing for a while after sinking a 12-foot putt birdie putt on the final hole to win the 154th British Open at Royal Birkdale in Southport, England, to earn his first major title and possession of the Claret Jug for a year.

It wasn't long before Fox was filling the iconic silver trophy with wine and discovering its capacity for various liquids.

"It comfortably fits one bottle of wine in it. We tried to tip a couple more but it didn't quite fit properly," Fox said.

As the owner of a 500-bottle wine cellar, he dipped into it figuring if he couldn't drink his good stuff – including a Grand Vin Chateau Latour – to celebrate the biggest triumph of his golf career, he'd never drink it. One night, he rented a venue for a party of 50 and they drank 18 bottles of red wine out of the Jug. (Fox's 8-year-old nephew reportedly took a sip of water from it too.)

"It was nice to celebrate it properly. We did it pretty well, maybe not as much as Shane Lowry," he said of the 2019 champ who, in viral videos, consumed pints of beer from the Jug at Irish pubs, "but we could tell a couple stories about our celebration. My liver needs a bit of a break. Sweating it out this week in Memphis and next week at St. Louis will probably help me."

In the days that followed his victory, Fox took the Claret Jug home to New Zealand and made sure to enjoy his favorite steak, bacon, jam and cheese pie at his local bakery and squeezed in some fishing when he wasn't showing off the trophy.

Fox said he declined a parade but upward of 3,000 people still gathered in Auckland for a Q&A at Takutai Square to celebrate New Zealand's fourth major golf champion and only the second Kiwi to lift the Claret Jug, following Sir Bob Charles in 1963.

Golf NZ acting chief executive officer Gregg Thorpe called Fox's win "a landmark moment for golf in New Zealand." Mayor Wayne Brown crowned the accomplishment alongside the likes of America's Cup victories, a recent gold medal in swimming at the Commonwealth Games and golf successes by Lydia Ko, a three-time major champion including the 2024 Women's British Open, and Michael Campbell, the 2005 U.S. Open winner.

Fox was glowing that sunny afternoon, bathing in the sounds of the love fest. The warm reception reminded Fox of how Campbell's win at Pinehurst No. 2 more than two decades ago had inspired him to take golf more seriously as a teenager.

"I was like, 'Wow, this is a little different.' All of a sudden I'm kind of walking in his shoes," Fox said of the hero's welcome home. "It's weird to think how I'm going to be like that for golfers in New Zealand now."

Fox also brought the Claret Jug to camp with the All Blacks, the country's famed rugby team of which his father, Grant, is one of the most heralded stars, where beer was the liquid of choice to be consumed from the trophy.

But now he's ready to drink Gatorade and sweat out the FedExCup Playoffs in muggy Memphis, calling it an important week to get back into his routine and chase another sought-after trophy of the sterling silver variety.

Entering the week at No. 22 in the season-long FedExCup standings, he's seeking to make it to East Lake and the Tour Championship, the Playoff finale with its 30-man field, for the first time in his career.

After his life-changing victory, sudden fame and new demands for his time, Fox hopes the golf course can be his sanctuary.

"I know at golf tournaments there is going to be a whole lot more interest, there's going to be a whole lot more scrutiny on how I play and everything like that," Fox told reporters last week in New Zealand.

"I'm looking forward to getting back on tour; it will be a very different vibe, but I've said it a few times this was always the dream and if I'm not prepared to live with the consequences good and bad of it, it shouldn't have been a dream in the first place, so, I'll roll with the punches in that regard."

Lennar Mortgage, LLC, 5505 Waterford District Drive, Suite 502, Miami, FL 33126, is providing notice about an event that may have impacted the sensitive personal information of certain individuals. This notice provides details about the event, measures Lennar Mortgage has taken in response, and additional steps impacted individuals can take to help protect their sensitive personal information, if they feel it is necessary to do so. On June 1, 2026, Lennar Mortgage became aware of a potential issue involving a limited portion of its information systems. Lennar Mortgage immediately took steps to secure its systems and, with the assistance of a third-party forensics team, investigate the extent of this activity. Lennar Mortgage then determined that an unauthorized party used sophisticated social engineering tactics to access some of its systems between May 26, 2026 and June 1, 2026. As part of its investigation, Lennar Mortgage assessed what sensitive personal information may have been impacted in connection with the event. Based on this assessment, which concluded on August 4, 2026, the sensitive personal information involved in the event may have included names, contact information, dates of birth, Social Security numbers, passport or other government ID information, driver's license or other state ID information, and financial account information. A very small number of individuals may have had medical-related information involved in the event. Not all categories of personal information were impacted for each individual. In response to the event, Lennar Mortgage contacted law enforcement and notified regulators. Following the event, to help prevent something similar from occurring, Lennar Mortgage implemented additional technical security measures to further protect its systems. In addition, while Lennar Mortgage is not aware of any misuse of sensitive personal information in connection with the event, out of an abundance of caution, it has secured the services of Kroll to provide two years of identity monitoring services to impacted individuals at no cost. Impacted individuals have until November 20, 2026 to activate and take advantage of these identity monitoring services. Lennar Mortgage encourages impacted individuals, as a best practice, to remain vigilant to the possibility of fraud by reviewing account statements and monitoring free credit reports for any unauthorized activity and reporting any such activity. For questions, call (844) 958-8939, Mon-Fri, from 9:00 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. ET, excluding major U.S. holidays.

Public Notices

Public Notices are a permanent and independent record of government and court actions. These include state and local government meetings, rule making, available contracts, zoning changes, and many more, as required by law. In addition, parties to some court proceedings, such as foreclosures, probate, and estate actions are required to publish notices to ensure notification of affected parties, as well as the general public. These notices also alert business owners, large and small, to potential government contractual jobs, helping to ensure economic activity across a level playing field. Public notices have existed to ensure transparency in all levels of government since the founding of the United States.

State and local notices are published in Maine newspapers and are also recorded at mainenotices.com, where anyone can browse or search notices, and sign up to receive email alerts when relevant notices appear.
